7. Narrative Description

This is a two-story, five-bay, brick building constructed after a fire destroyed an earlier building here in 1932. The first story has be altered by installing large aluminum windows and three aluminum doors. The second story has five evenly spaced double-hung windows with segmental arch brick lintels. Buff brick corbel brackets extend across the frieze under a single concrete band.

8. Narrative Statement of Significance

The Congress Hotel, Cafe, and Tavern appears to contribute historically to the Washington Downtown Historic District.

Norman Everson is listed as the original owner of lots 6 and 7 in block 9. The 1885 Sanborn map shows a house on lot 7 to the east, and a small two-story building to the west on the west 1/3 of Lot 6. These two buildings are shown on the 1892 and 1897 Sanborn maps as well, with this portion of lot 6 vacant. The two lots transferred from Norman S. Everson to E.E. Everson on April 18, 1898. The property then transferred to the Morrison family. The same two earlier buildings are shown here on the 1909 Sanborn map, with the east 2/3 of Lot 6 as vacant.

On April 4, 1910, the west 2/3 of Lot 6 transferred from Emeline Morrison to D.W. Harvey and R.S. Warfel, who sold only the west 22' on May 2, 1910 to S.B. and R.P. Dewey, keeping the middle 1/3 (22') of Lot 6. On April 19, 1910, the east 1/3 (22') of Lot 6 and the west 1/6 (11') of Lot 7 was sold by Emeline Morrison to Orville Elder and J.L. Brookhart. Jointly, the four men teamed together to construct this 55' wide building. Much later, on April 30, 1932, Orville Elder et al sold the east 1/3 (22') of Lot 6 and the west 1/6 (11') of Lot 7 to D.W. Harvey and R.S. Warfel. Thus, they then owned the entire building. The 1910 city directory lists The Evening Journal newspaper, published by Orville Elder, in the building at 104 E. Main on the west 1/3 of Lot 6. The Washington Evening Journal was named as such by William Fitzwilliams and Nate Black on February 15, 1894, who bought The Hustler from William McCauseland who had started it on February 15, 1893. It was sold to Orville Elder in the late 1890s. By 1912, they appear to have moved two doors east to their portion of this new building (east half) at 110 E. Main. According to the 1917 Sanborn Map, the east storefront (108, now 110 E. Main) in this building was the Washington Journal office, with printing in the rear section. The 1926 city directory lists the Washington Journal at 110 E. Main. They moved to their new building on 111 N. Marion in 1930. The Congress Hotel had their office and restaurant on the first story of the west storefront, with rooms on the second story, per the 1917 Sanborn map. The 1931 Sanborn map continued to show the Congress Hotel at 108-110 E. Main Street.

On March 11, 1932, fire destroyed the Congress Hotel at 108-110 E. Main, with damage to the Fox Theater and Jones Funeral Home to east (Fisher 1978: 118). It was then after this fire that Orville Elder sold his interest in the property to D.W. Harvey and R.S. Warfel, who built a new two-story building on this property. The Congress Hotel & Cafe boasted 42 years of service, and they were proud of their new hotel and cafe building, per the Evening Journal – Washington County Centennial Celebration – July 1936 - page 55. A photo of building shows the current facade. The Congress Hotel continued to operate here into the early 1940s. The 1935 directory lists Congress Hotel & Cafe, as well as the Congress Tavern, at 108 E. Main. Both the Congress Hotel and Congress Tavern are listed at 108 E. Main in the 1941 directory. The Jackson Lines Bus Depot was located in the hotel at 110 E. Main per the 1941 city directory.

Dr. G.E. Montgomery is listed with his office at 108 E. Main in the 1950s. By 1955, Perdock Olds-Cadillac is listed at 110 E. Main. Minick Furniture was then at 110 in 1964, with Richard C George Beauty Salon at 108. The beauty salon was still at 108 in 1971, with Gibson's Discount Center at 110.
Elaine's Beauty Shop was listed at 108 in the 1987 phone directory, and The Print Shop was at 110 in the 1988 phone directory.

Currently (2012), 108 is an extension of the Northwest Mutual Insurance office next door at 106 E. Main, and 110 portion is used by KCII Radio with the Suzanne Stock Dentist office in the back of the first floor, as well as having a family gathering room used by the Jones & Eden Funeral home to the east at 114-118 E. Main.
