7. Narrative Description

This is a three story brick building on the southwest corner of the intersection of E. Main and S. 2nd Ave. The original 1925 Classical Revival building has been surrounded by additions to the north, east, and south, with the original exterior only visible in the alley to the west. The facade (north) is composed of a 1966 two-story addition, entry vestibule to the east, and a two-story upper addition from 1983 on top of the 1966 addition. Windows on the first and second story (in the 1966 section) are tall and narrow with concrete bulkheads and vertical concrete trim at the sides. Across the north facade from left to right, the openings are as follows: a single window, two groups of three windows, a pair of windows, another group of three windows, the secondary entry within a group of three windows, and a single window. There is a concrete band between the second and third stories, at the top of the 1966 addition. The upper two stories (the 1983 addition) have one central group of four narrow rectangular windows on each story. The east side of the second story has paired windows similar to the 1966 windows on the north side, and the third and fourth stories (in the 1983 addition) have paired rectangular windows towards the south side of the elevation. The entry vestibule is one story and sits at the northeast corner of the building. It has small rectangular projected concrete panels similar to the east addition immediately to the south. Both appear to have been built in 1973. The three-story east side addition has a rectangular first story window within a projected vertical concrete band that extends to the roof. A low concrete "wall" extends from this point into the entry vestibule. No other openings are found on this addition. A wide concrete band acts as a cornice for this section. The three-story south addition was built in 1983. The east side has an entry with a rectangular window above it on each story in the north bay. The only other openings on this side of this addition are a group of four rectangular windows at the south end of the third story. This addition wraps around the southeast corner of the original building, covering most of the south elevation as well.

8. Narrative Statement of Significance

Due to the additions in the last 30 years, the YMCA does not retain sufficient integrity to be individually eligible nor contributing within the Washington Downtown Historic District. While the 1966 additions fall within the period of significance, the large additions on the upper portion of the front of the building and rear southeast corner have obscured design and form of the originally expanded building. The original walls are of the 1924-25 building are visible from the alley and at the southwest rear corner of the building.

The YMCA in Washington was organized in May 1877 by local businessmen. At that time, Washington Academy operated in an earlier building on this site. The property was sold to the Independent School District of Washington in June 1910, and to the Washington Hotel Company in August 1919. The Hotel Company sold the property to the YMCA in June 1923. Temple & Burrows of Davenport were hired as the architects, and construction began in spring 1924. The building was dedicated on February 1, 1925. Sanborn maps and historic images show it setback from the corner and from Main Street to the north. This location let more space to the front for later expansion than to the south. In 1965-66, an two-story addition was built on the front (north) along Main Street and along the east along N. 2nd Avenue. Architect was Charles Richardson Associates, and contractor was Frantz Construction Co. In 1973, the one story entry block was added. In 1983, the upper double-height section was added above the 1966 addition on the north side, obscuring the remainder of the original building.
