7. Narrative Description

This two-story brick rowhouse sits on a slightly raised basement of limestone blocks. The foundation has one small window and three steps to the front entry. The first story has a entry with a transom window and two one-over-one-light double-hung windows. The second story has three one-over-one-light double-hung windows. The door and windows have a brick segmental arch lintels and stone sills. The building is crowned with a decorative metal cornice. The cornice has end brackets and is divided by six smaller brackets. Between each bracket is a decorative semi-circular motif. The first story of the west elevation shows evidence of first story windows with segmental arch lintels, filled in with brick likely when the automotive building to the west was constructed (prior to 1930). The second story wall appears to have been partially rebuilt, with some older window openings also visible within the original portion of the brick wall. This wall was re-exposed with the demolition of the adjacent building in 2011.

8. Narrative Statement of Significance

The Dr. William and Susan McClelland House appear to contribute historically to the Washington Downtown Historic District. Dr. William McClelland is associated with the business/professional history of Washington, and later owner/resident Ray Cox was associated with the automotive business immediately to the west of this building historically.

The 1892 Sanborn map shows this section of the property as a vacant lot with an earlier dwelling on the west half of the lot. This dwelling clad in brick veneer is depicted on the 1897 Sanborn map. It is noted as a dwelling on the maps in 1902, 1909, 1917, 1931, and 1943. The first owner of Lot 3 noted in the transfer books is William McClelland. McClelland owned this lot until his death in the 1910s. The 1897 Sanborn map shows this dwelling (213) built to the curbline on the east portion of the property, and it is noted as clad in brick veneer. A second house (217) was setback on the west portion of the property, and it is noted as "tenant" on the 1902 map. Both are dwellings on the 1909 and 1917 maps. McClelland & Crowden, physicians, are noted in an ad on May 6, 1857 with their office and residence a few doors west of the southwest corner of the square. Dr. William McClelland was on the board that incorporated the Farmers' and Merchants' Bank of Washington in 1867, then replaced by teh Washington National Bank in 1870. He was also on the board that started the Washington Academy in 1872. Dr. William and Clarissa McClelland moved to Washington in 1855. After Clarissa died in 1874, he married Susan Spence on November 8, 1877, of Lancaster, PA (Burrell 1909, Vol. 2: 296). By 1887, he had three living children from his first marriage, Elizabeth White (Washington), Clara Guthrie (Washington), and Margaret Vanatta (Colorado) (Portrait and Biographical Album of Washington County 1887: 590). The 1894 city directory lists William McClelland at 211 W. Washington, and this building (house/office) first appears here as 211 W. Washington on the 1897 Sanborn map. Thus, this rowhouse appears to have been built around 1893, and they appear to have moved here. The 1900 census lists William McClelland, physician, age 86, born on February 1814 in Pennsylvania. His wife, Susan S., age 68, was also born in Pennsylvania. She is noted as having bore no children. They had two boarders that lived with them, a school teacher and a journalist. Dr. William McClelland died on June 10, 1902. The 1903 city directory lists Susan McClelland at 213 W. Washington. Susan then died on March 9, 1915. Neither obituary included information on this property. The 1917 Sanborn map continues to show this brick veneer house and the earlier setback house on Lot 3.

On January 23, 1930, H.W. Raynor and wife sold Lot 3 to E.R. Cox. The 1931 Sanborn map shows this house at 213 W. Washington, and the house to the west at 217 W. Washington has been demolished and replaced with a garage with 20-car capacity (demolished in 2011). Ray Cox moved Cox Motor Company and Studebaker Garage to 217 W. Washington on March 1, 1930. The 1930 census lists E. Ray Cox, age 30, here with wife Mabel, age 31, and son R. Dean, age 7. Ray was the proprietor of an auto repair shop. The 1932 telephone directory lists E.R. Cox at 213 W. Washington, and he continued to be listed here with wife Mabel through the 1930s. The 1940 census notes that the home is valued at $2,500. Ray Cox (age 40) lived here with wife Mabel (age 41) and son Dean (age 17). Ray is listed as a mechanic at a retail auto establishment. 1940s, and 1950s. They continued to be listed here in the 1964 city directory as well. Additional information on Cox Motor Company includes:

Ray and Mabel Cox continued to be listed here in the 1950s city directory, 1964 directory, and into the 1980s city directories. The Cox Motor Company building immediately to the west was demolished in 2011. The building continues to be used as a private residence.
